WEB SITE: CGS.GMU.EDU

CENTER FOR Global Studies

George Mason University's Center for Global Studies presents:

South-South Cooperation and Global Trade: Bypassing the Hegemon?

Friday, March 21, 2008
9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m.
The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace
1779 Massachusetts Ave NW Washington, DC

A distinguished panel of experts will examine a range of issues relating to the new geopolitics of emerging markets, the current state of global trade relations, South-South cooperation, and how to move global trade forward in 2008. Topics to be covered include Brazil and the new South American regionalism, China's role in Africa, Russian outreach to the Middle East, transnational Muslim networks, and the future of South-South co-operation, among others. The afternoon program will feature a roundtable on the future of global trade relations and new opportunities for progress in the stalled Doha Round.

Confirmed Speakers

Sean Burges (Council on Hemispheric Affairs)
Yvonne Captain-Hidalgo (George Washington University)
Joshua Eisenman (American Foreign Policy Council)
Kim Elliott (Center for Global Development/Peterson Institute)
Oliver Griffiths (British Embassy, Washington)
Mark N. Katz (George Mason University)
Gawain Kripke (Oxfam America)
Peter Mandaville (George Mason University)
Will Martin (The World Bank)
Christine McDaniel (US Treasury)
James H. Mittelman (American University)
Devesh Roy (International Food Policy Research Institute)
Steve Suppan (Institute for Agriculture and Trade Policy)

Light breakfast and lunch will be served.

Center for Global Studies
George Mason University
3401 Fairfax Drive, MS 1B9
Arlington, VA 22201
USA

Please RSVP by March 18 with your name and organizational affiliation(s) to Levi White at cgs@gmu.edu